

COMMERCIAL FINANCE

Glenn Feldmann Darby & Goodlatte can provide help with commercial credit and finance law based on its experience with the relevant issues from real estate to securities, with lenders and venture capital funds, and with moving the transaction from commitment to closing.

Sam Darby, Mark Feldmann, Maryellen Goodlatte and David Tenzer are our primary commercial transaction lawyers.

- Maryellen Goodlatte is widely known for her experience in financing transactions, especially those involving real estate. She has devoted the majority of her practice to commercial real estate matters and land use planning, giving her extensive knowledge of the real estate industry and experience working in conjunction with funding and government agencies.
- Sam Darby knows development financing and has wide experience in working with municipalities and financial institutions. In addition, he has assisted commercial clients, as well as manufacturing companies and non-profit organizations, in utilizing industrial development programs and in obtaining tax-exempt bond financing.
- David Tenzer has served as general counsel for several early stage technology companies, representing them and their principals in multiple round venture capital financings. He also has represented both financial institutions and their clients in commercial loan transactions.
